They may also teach an after school class to teaching staff and evening classes to older nuns in the Shedra (Buddhist College) and Trasang (practicing Sangha). We are asking volunteers to commit for five months. Our school year is divided into 2 terms: May to September and November to March.

Trasang evening classes are scheduled from 5 to 6pm and may be included if we have 2 volunteers to deliver classes. Typically Volunteers will be rostered to teach 5 to 6 classes per day. A work schedule including class planning time table will be worked out with the volunteers on arrival.

This is a volunteer position without salary or stipend. Volunteers must cover their own travel expenses, health and travel insurance, tourist visa costs and pocket money. Room and board at Tsoknyi Gechak Ling (TGL) is provided as well as 2 weeks holiday time off during the five-month volunteering commitment.

Location:

Tsoknyi Gechak Ling is located outside Kathmandu in the small Newar village of Chobhar with few amenities or shops. The larger town of Kirtipur is a half hour away on foot. The public transport service to Kathmandu is poor and unscheduled and more often than not the buses are overcrowded. Taxis to pick you up can be booked but are obviously more costly. It takes about 45 minutes to get into downtown Kathmandu by bus, 30 minutes to get to Swayambunath and an hour and a half to get to Boudha.

Life in Kathmandu:

Life in Kathmandu is not without its challenges – regular electricity cuts and water shortages are normal. Potholes, overcrowded buses, chaotic bumper to bumper traffic, along with noise and dust are endemic. Frustrations can build and getting things done at times; can feel extremely difficult! While our aim is at TGL is to create an oasis of calm, for now and until completion of building works, TGL is a dusty (or muddy) and noisy construction site. Tsoknyi Gechak School has been in operation for only four years. We are therefore looking for volunteers who are flexible and adaptable and can adjust to living and working in a Developing Country that lacks resources and basic facilities of Developing countries.
